Climate 'Manufactured' For Cigarette Wrappers

PISGAH FOREST, N. C.—Smokers may not realize it, but that wisp of white paper wrapper used in a cigarette is being made today in a rarefied atmosphere where every element, even the air, is controlled scientifically.

Enlisting science to improve the smoker's lot, Ecusta Paper corporation has installed an elaborate "climate manufacturing" system in its mill here. With automatic controls developed by engineers of Minneapolis-Honeywell Regulator company it is possible to keep temperature and humidity at levels best suited to processing, despite outside conditions.

Precise control is necessary to meet rigid specifications, according to company officials. Cigarette paper must be pure white and opaque. It must be about the thickness of a human hair, yet elastic enough to withstand pull of cigarette machines. It must fold without tearing, burn at the same rate as tobacco, must not stick to the lips and must be tasteless. Furthermore, a strip the width of a cigarette must support a weight of eight pounds.

County Supervisors 'Pass the Buck' to Solve Legal Tangle

SUPERIOR, WIS.—It was a cool, sunny day and Douglas county supervisors had no stomach for any kind of red tape.

But there was that annoying little detail of an $8 coal bill that had to be taken care of. The coal was delivered last winter to a relief client who since had died. Now the county had the bill.

It was a legal puzzle over what funds should be used to take care of it.

One look out of the window at the clear blue sky settled the matter for the eight supervisors. Each pulled out a dollar bill and clipped it to the relief voucher.

It Takes 16 Years but Barber Pays Off Depression Debts

NORFOLK, VA. — Sixteen years isn't too long for an honest man to wait.

Carl S. Bonneville, a barber, left Norfolk in 1932, right in the middle of a depression. He had to sell his car for $75 to pay some debts, and he owed many more. He left town with $40 in his pockets.

Bonneville, now 71 years old and a resident of Selbyville, Del., is back in Norfolk paying off old debts.

He went to the Norfolk General hospital, laid two $20 bills on the desk, and said he had owed it to the hospital for 20 years.

Then he called on a physician and paid him $200 for a knee operation, and settled a $90 note held by Arthur Bulman, who owns a barber shop in which he worked for 11 years.

After squaring a smaller debt or two, Bonneville had to call it quits. He couldn't find his other creditors. He had paid up $350 in all.

Since the year 1938 he has worked steadily and now operates his own barber shop.

Now at last, he could afford to pay his bills.

Uncle Sam Says

The first observance of Labor Day in the United States was held in New York City in 1882 by the American Federation of Labor. In 1948, some 60 million wage earners will join in the annual celebration of that day. Congratulations are in order. Millions of workers are now banding against any future emergencies by allocating a portion of your weekly wages to the purchase of U.S. Savings Bonds through the Payroll Savings Plan. You may be sure because it is automatic, it is safe. If not enrolled you can sign up today where you work for the Payroll Savings Plan, or, if self-employed, see your banker and ask to be enrolled for the Bond-a-Month Plan to purchase U.S. Savings Bonds. An allotment of $2.63 a week will bring you $2163.45 in ten years.

School Opening Increases Road Accident Peril

Richmond, Sept. 8.- With well over a half-million Virginia boys and girls starting back to school this week afoot, on bicycles and in motor vehicles, the Governor's Highway Safety Committee, the Department of State Police and the State Board of Education are asking the cooperation of motorists, parents, teachers and pupils themselves in preventing accidents involving children of school age.

E. H. Williams, Jr., Executive Director of the Governor's Highway Safety Committee, urged particularly that motorists display tolerance towards children' natural lack of mature judgment, that parents and teachers set good examples themselves and that anyone concerned with the supervision of young people see that they have the proper instruction for safe traffic behavior.

Col. C. W. Woodson, Jr., Superintendent of State Police, stated that careless and uncooperative drivers who speed through school zones and do not obey the Virginia laws requiring them to stop when passing or meeting a school bus that is loading or unloading passengers will be subject to the same stern enforcement measures that have always been the policy of the department.

The Department of Education's spokesman, Raymond M. Wimbish, Supervisor of Pupil Transportation, appealed directly to pupils in asking that they obey implicitly the instructions of transportation officials and that they save the skylarking for the playground. He added that some 2600 busses will transport 2220,000 pupils each day and that each pupil must cross a road at least once. No child has been killed, he said, while boarding or leaving a school bus for the past two years and the department is anxious to maintain this record.

From where I sit ... by Joe Marsh
One Great American Trait
I always think it does a newspaper editor good to get out from behind his desk and see how folks in other parts of America look, talk, think, and act.
And that's what I've been doing these past weeks, touring the country from Michigan to Texas, California to Maine. It's a mighty encouraging experience. Not only because of the different points of view you run into—but because of the reference which reconciles those different points of view.
I mean the tolerance of a Pennsylvania farmer for the habits of his city cousin; the tolerance of folks who vote one way towards those who vote another; the tolerance of those who prefer spring water towards those who enjoy a moderate beverage like beer.
From where I sit, it's that great American trait of tolerance—respect for individual tastes and liberties—that makes this country strong. Let's never lose it!
